Scenes and Incidents Connected with his Last Hours on Earth—Quietly and without Pain his Spirit Passes Away—Grief Universal

MT. McGREGOR, July 23.—General Grant died at 8:08 A. M., surrounded by all his family. He passed out of life peacefully and without evident pain.

EFFORTS TO STIMULATE OF NO AVAIL

MT. McGREGOR, July 23.—The use of hot applications to keep warmth in General Grant's extremities and vital parts were resorted to early last night. They were of some avail, but artificial warmth was without the power to reach the cause or stay the results of dissolution which began Tuesday evening and had been progressing steadily though gradually. Hypodermic injections of brandy were frequently given to stimulate the flagging physical powers, but later this failed to effect the patient, whose physical forces were so far spent as to furnish no footing for a rebound. Indeed the efforts of the medical men were being made because none could stand by inactive and without the trial of an expedient that might prolong an hour or a minute. The physicians believed the patient might reach the extreme ebb of his strength at 1 o'clock this morning, and the approach of that hour was anticipated with intense anxiety at the cottage. It passed, however, and the general lying upon his back and propped by two pillows that lay upon the cot bed in the parlor, was yet living, but growing weaker. The inevitable close of the general's long sickness seemed more and more imminent. The feeble pulse beats had worn themselves by their rapidity to a fluttering throb that could not be gauged beneath the finger of the physicians. The body was being worn out by its own life currents so rapid was its course through the veins. Repeatedly the brandy was entered beneath the skin of the general's arm, but despite its waking influence there respiration had quickened from 44 to the minute during the evening to a point of labored breathing that was painful to the friends who were grouped and bent near the sick man. Two o'clock had been passed and evidences of nearing death were multiplying. The increasing respirations were not alone more rapid but more shallow. The lungs and heart were giving away. So weak had the general grown at [illegible] o'clock that though he frequently attempted to doze he was unable any longer to clear the gathering mucus from his throat. It accumulated and remained and as 4 o'clock drew on and the daylight came, a point had been reached when expectoration was impossible. There was not left enough of strength. From 4 o'clock on there was in the throat the significant rattle of the mucus that was filling the lungs and clogging the throat. At [illegible] o'clock the general asked for water and after that it could not be remembered that he uttered any word. At [illegible] o'clock the breathing was quickened and reached 50 to the minute. An hour later the respirations had reached 60, and between 6 and 7 o'clock the finger nails had become blue and the hands further evinced the progress of numbness at the extremities, and at every breath the mucus clogging in the throat was growing more noticeable.

THE LAST MINUTES

A few minutes before 8 o'clock Doctors Douglas, Shrady and Sands stood on the cottage veranda conversing on the condition of General Grant and discussing the probabilities of his death and the limit of life left the sick man. Mrs. Sartoris and Stenographer Dawson were conversing a little distance away when the nurse stepped hastily upon the piazza and spoke quietly to the physicians. He told them he thought the general was very near to death. The medical men hastily entered the room where the sick man was lying and approached his side. Instantly, upon scanning the patient's face, Dr. Douglas ordered the family to be assembled to the bedside. Haste was made and Mrs. Grant, Mr. Jesse Grant and wife, U. S. Grant, jr., and wife, and Mrs. Colonel Grant were quickly beside the doctors at the sick man's cot. Mrs. Sartoris and Mr. Dawson had followed the doctor in from the piazza, and the entire family was present except Colonel Fred Grant. A hasty summons was sent for him but he entered the [illegible] [illegible] the pillow at the head of the general who was breathing rapidly and with a slightly gasping respiration. Mrs. Grant calm but with intense agitation bravely [illegible] took a seat close by the bedside. She leaned slightly upon the cot resting upon her right elbow and gazed with tear-tinted eyes into the general's face. She found there, however, no token of recognition for the sick man was peacefully and painlessly passing into another life. Mrs. Sartoris came behind her mother, and leaning over her shoulder so witnessed the close of the life in which she had constituted a strong element of pride. Directly behind Mrs. Grant and Mrs. Sartoris and at a little distance stood Drs. Douglas and Shrady, spectators of the closing life their efforts and counsel had so prolonged.

SIGNS OF DEATH

On the opposite of the bed from his mother and directly before her, stood Jesse Grant and U. S. Grant, jr., and near the corner of the cot on the same side as Jesse and near to each was Mr. N. E. Dawson, the general's stenographer and confidential secretary. At the foot of the bed and gazing directly down into the general's face was Mrs. Colonel Fred Grant, Mrs. U. S. Grant, jr., and Mrs. Jesse Grant, while somewhat removed from the family circle, Henry, the nurse, and Harrison Tyrrell, the general's body servant, were respectfully watching the closing life of the patient. Dr. Newman had repaired to the hotel for breakfast and was not present. The general's little grandchildren, U. S. Grant, [illegible] and Nellie, were sleeping in a nursery room above. Otherwise the entire family and household were gathered at the bedside of the dying man.

The members of the group had been summoned not a moment sooner than was prudent. The doctors noted on entering the room and proceeding to the bedside that already a purple tinge, which is one of nature's signals of final dissolution, had settled beneath the finger nails. The hand that Dr. Douglas lifted was growing colder than it had been through the night. The pulse had fluttered beyond a point where the physician could distinguish it from the pulse beats in his own finger tips. Respiration was very rapid and was a succession of shallow panting inhalations, but happily approaching the end was becoming clear of the rattling fullness of the throat and lungs, and as respiration grew quicker and more rapid at the close there became less labored and almost noiseless. This fact was in its results a comfort to the watchers by the bedside to whom was spared the scene of other than a peaceful death. The folded hands of the dying general and at times, as a passionate longing to prevent the event so near, would rise within her. Mrs. Grant pressed both his hands, and leaning forward tenderly kissed the face of the sinking man.

DEATH

Colonel Fred Grant sat silently but with evident feeling, though his bearing was that of a soldier [illegible] at the deathbed of a hero father. U. S. Grant, jr., was deeply moved but Jesse bore the scene steadily, and the ladies while watching, with wet cheeks were silent. The morning had passed five minutes beyond 8 o'clock and there was not one of the standing and waiting watchers but who could mark the nearness of the life-tide to its final ebbing. Dr. Douglas noted the nearness of the supreme moment, and quietly approached the bed side. As he bent above it the sorrow of the gray haired physician seemed closely allied with that of the family. Dr. Shrady also drew near. It was seven minutes after 8 o'clock and the eyes of the general were losing. His breathing grew more hushed as the last functions of the heart and lungs were hastened to the closing of the ex-president's life. A tranquil expression seemed to be deepening in the firm and strong lined face [illegible] as a closing comfort to the [illegible] that [illegible] quietly under the stress of long suffering. A minute more passed and [illegible] as the general drew a deeper breath. There was an exhalation like that of one relieved of [illegible] anxious tension. Members of the group now [illegible] each, stepped [illegible] wait for the next respiration but it did not come. There was absolute stillness in the room and a hush of expectancy, so that no sound broke the silence save the singing of birds in the pines outside the cottage and the measured throbbing of the engine that all night had waited by the mountain depot. "It's all over," quietly spoke Dr. Douglas, and there came then heavily to each witness the realization that General Grant was dead. Then the doctors withdrew, the nurse closed the eyelids and composed the dead general's head, after which each of the family group passed to the bedside one after the other and touched their lips upon the quiet face so lately stilled.

Dr. Shrady passed out upon the piazza and [illegible] met Dr. Newman hastening up stairs. "He is dead," remarked Dr. Shrady quietly. Dr. [illegible] having been absent from the side of the dying man the family at the last was [illegible] and [illegible] to the clergyman who had waited all night at the cottage. He had been summoned a moment too late and reached the cottage only in time to administer to the family sorrowing, and gaze upon the serenely hushed lips of the dead general to whom Dr. Newman's love and devotion had been [illegible].

THE DOCTORS CONVERSE

Soon after Doctors Douglas and Shrady left the deathbed they conversed feelingly of the last hours of General Grant's life. The pulse first had [illegible] and the intellect was last to succumb. Its clearness and conscious tenacity and that not until after midnight last night though a circumstance at [illegible] o'clock indicated cognizance.

"Do you want anything father?" questioned Colonel Fred at that hour.

"Water," whispered the general huskily, but when offered water and milk they gurgled in his throat and were ejected, and that one word in response was the last utterance of General Grant.

Dr. Douglas remarked that the peculiarity of General Grant's death was explained by his remarkable vitality, that seemed to present an obstacle to the approach of death. It was a gradual passing away of the vital forces and reflex consciousness the doctor thought was retained to the last. The general died of exhaustion and in a perfectly painless manner, sinking away.

Yes, interjected Dr. Shrady quickly, the general dreaded pain when he felt that he had begun sinking and he asked that he should not be permitted to suffer. The promise was made and it has been kept. Since he commenced to sink Tuesday night he was free from pain.

Toward the last no food was taken, but when a wet cloth was pressed to his lips he would suck from it water to moisten his mouth. During the general's last night Dr. Shrady was constantly within call. Dr. Douglas was all night at the cottage and Dr. Sands slept at the hotel after midnight.

Within twenty minutes after the death of General Grant, Karl Gerhardt, a Hartford sculptor, who has been making a study here of the general, was summoned to the cottage at the suggestion of Dr. Newman, to take a plaster mask of the dead man's face. He was highly successful.

Within half an hour after the general's decease a waiting engine at the mountain depot was on the way to Saratoga to bring an undertaker who will place the remains in ice to-day to await the arrival of a New York undertaker who has been summoned.

PREPARATIONS FOR BURIAL

An embalmer from New York will be summoned to preserve General Grant's remains, but a local undertaker will undoubtedly conduct the immediate details and convey the remains to New York. When the body shall have reached New York the question of a post mortem will be considered and determined by the family. Touching the place for burial the general a month ago indicated three places as suiting his wishes in that direction. The choice, however, was narrowed to two, owing to the natural wish of the general that his wife should rest beside him. A strong desire has been expressed to the family that the burial should take place in Washington and efforts have been put forth to make New York the last resting place of the general. Before his death, however, General Grant left the choice of a burial spot entirely to Colonel Fred Grant, imposing only the condition that the spot selected should be such as that Mrs. Grant might rest by his side. His remains will be removed to New York by special train and there prepared for burial.

THE BURIAL PLACE UNSELECTED

Details and arrangements touching the remains while they are here, and until they arrive in New York, are in charge of Joseph W. Drexel and M. J. Arkell. At this writing the physicians are desirous of having a post mortem examination, but the family are said to be averse, and that is a matter to be determined. A week ago the general is said to have intimated that should he die here during the hot weather he would prefer that his remains should remain here until cooler weather, the purpose being to spare the family the sad and fatiguing journey in sultry weather. It is doubtful, however, if the suggestion is fully carried out though it is not unlikely that the remains may repose here several days. This, however, is entirely at the disposal of Col. Fred Grant, to whom is left entire control of all arrangements relative to his father's remains. It is not unlikely that a proposition from the city of New York to accord a burial plot for the general and his wife when she too shall have passed away might be considered by the colonel. There is an impression that Washington may be chosen as a burial spot. It is believed to be founded on the present inclination of Colonel Grant, the only condition made by the general and that as long ago as June 24 was that his remains should be interred where those of Mrs. Grant might in time lie beside his own.

THE DAY ON THE MOUNTAIN

Quietude Reigns About the Cottage and the Hotel—Nothing yet Arranged

MT. McGREGOR, July 23.—Quietude pervaded the mountain this morning when it was announced that General Grant had ceased his long struggle. This feeling, however, gave place later to a sense of relief that the struggle was ended, and the tired mind and body was at rest. While there was no heart that was not in sympathy toward the general's family, yet there was a strong feeling of gratitude that [illegible] who suffered so bravely and [illegible] had gained the quiet of a long rest.

The day was perfect summer's day, warm and clear, and the sun beat down upon the cottage roof just the same as when there was [illegible] [illegible] within the house now to be noticed [illegible] [illegible] visitors came up the mountain road as they did yesterday, and a spirit of workmen made some [illegible] [illegible] as they proceeded with the construction of a pavilion toward excursionists might come to buggy and wagons. The cottage was as deserted as the house since the shades were drawn at the parlor windows where [illegible] to blow all the breeze to drift through the room in which the dead general lay.

[illegible] of the cottage were closed, the windows upstairs were fastened and the [illegible] the [illegible] except as they came [illegible] from the cottage up through the [illegible] the ridge to luncheon and dinner at the hotel.

[illegible] FROM THE GOVERNOR

[illegible] [illegible] Colonel Fred Grant and [illegible] the state capitol building at Albany for [illegible] [illegible] the general [illegible] that plans for the obsequies were [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] known [illegible]

[illegible] Colonel [illegible] of Washington, one of General Grant's warmest personal friends, called [illegible] Mr. Grant the [illegible] of his house in Washington during the stay of the family there [illegible] the event of the [illegible] remains [illegible] but that [illegible] Mrs. Grant [illegible] be seen, but Colonel Grant thanked his father's friend for the kindly thought.

Late in the afternoon a squad of uniformed men from Wheeler post G. A. R. of Saratoga, came up the mountain to guard the cottage. A tent was pitched on the needles beneath the pine trees where last night the anxious correspondent bivouacked. Guard lines were soon established and at dusk patrol of the beats was begun. The guard will be temporarily maintained, and thus morbidly curious people will be kept from the cottage.

NO AUTOPSY TO BE HELD

Dr. Shrady remained here to-day in order that Dr. Douglas and himself might, after order had been restored in the house, confer with Colonel Grant on the subject of post mortem examination of the remains of his father. The physicians therefore this evening repaired to the cottage and met the colonel with the formal preference of their request that an autopsy might be held. They stated that their purpose was not in the least to confirm the opinion of the disease for they had all thus been united in diagnosis, the case was one of cancer, but the time had come when the medical staff might step aside from the patient and invite any other medical man of [illegible] to conduct the examination, which would speak for itself. This both Doctors Douglas and Shrady urged as far as professional and personal dignity could permit, but Colonel Grant replied that the entire family were so thoroughly united in their confidence in the diagnosis and treatment of the physicians that they could not conceive the necessity for an autopsy.

THE QUESTION OF BURIAL

The interest now centers chiefly upon the question of state and the burial. Colonel Fred Grant himself does not this evening know where the place of sepulture will be made. A messenger from President Cleveland arrived [illegible] from Mayor Grace, New York, will [illegible] to-morrow [illegible] present [illegible] to colonel [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the cities of Washington and New York to bring thither for burial the remains of the general. Horace Porter will arrive here to-morrow, to confer with Colonel Grant relative to the arrangement of the funeral details. The city of Springfield, Illinois, has also tendered a resting place for the remains of the general. Some days must elapse before all the details and arrangements can be perfected and meantime the body in the veins of which the embalmers are to-night injecting antiseptic fluids for its preservation, will be kept upon the mountain. Mr. W. J. Arkell will vacate his cottage near Artist's Isle and the remains of General Grant will be placed there, the cottage to be [illegible] and guarded by a platoon which will be sent by General Hancock. The public will be kept at a distance in accordance with the general's desire expressed a week ago. When the arrangements are made and the burial place has been chosen the remains will be conveyed in a special train to Albany where they will lie in state for a day. From Albany the body will be taken by special train to New York, and possibly to Washington, depending on which [illegible] chosen for burial.

THE NEWS AT WASHINGTON

Flags Placed at Half-mast, Bells Tolled and Universal Sorrow Shown

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Shortly after 8 o'clock this morning President Cleveland was informed of the death of General Grant. He immediately ordered that the flag on the White house be placed at half-mast. The lowering of the flag was the first intimation that the citizens of Washington had of the death of the distinguished man, although they had been anticipating it throughout the night. A few minutes after the White house flag had been placed at half mast the flags on all the public buildings and on many private ones were placed in a like position. The bells of the city were tolled, and citizens who heard them readily recognized their meaning. Business men immediately began draping their houses with mourning, and residences in a similar manner showed the general esteem for the deceased.

President Cleveland sent the following dispatch this morning to Mrs. Grant at Mt. Gregor:

Accept this expression of my heartfelt sympathy in this hour of your great affliction. The people of this nation mourn with you and would reach if they could with kindly comfort, the depths of sorrow which is yours alone, and which only the pity of God can heal.

The [illegible] [illegible] of the cabinet was called for 11 o'clock instead of 12, so as to take action on the death of the ex-president.

PRESIDENTIAL PROCLAMATION

The following proclamation was issued:

The president of the United States has just received the sad tidings of the death of that illustrious citizen and ex-president of the United States, General Ulysses S. Grant, at Mt. McGregor, in the state of New York, to which place he had lately been removed in an endeavor to prolong his life. In making this announcement to the people of the United States the president is impressed with the magnitude of the public loss of a great military leader, who was in the hour of victory magnanimous and amid disaster serene and self sustained. Who in every station, whether as a soldier or as a chief magistrate, twice called to power by his fellow countrymen, trod unswervingly the pathway of duty, undeterred by doubts, single minded and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] his country [illegible] with tender sympathy [illegible] [illegible] at last and his sorrow [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] that followed him [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sorrow [illegible] [illegible] mindful of his [illegible] his great patriotic services and [illegible] his death.

In testimony of respect to the memory of General Grant, it is ordered that the executive offices in Washington and the several departments in Washington be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days, and that public business shall on the day of the funeral be suspended and the secretaries of war and of the navy will cause orders to be issued that appropriate military and naval honors be rendered on that day.

In witness whereof I have set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this 23d day of July, A. D. 1885, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and tenth.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

By the President:

T. F. BAYARD, Secretary of State.

THE CAPITAL MOURNS

Old Friends and Acquaintances of the Dead Hero Discuss his Merits

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Sadness settled over the departments to-day. News of General Grant's death became known to nearly all the clerks before they reached the scenes of their duties. The flags were all placed at half mast and orders issued for the buildings to be draped in deep mourning. There was a disposition to close the departments at once, and the pension office was closed without waiting for an executive order. The opinion was expressed on every hand that the nation has never suffered such an affliction since the death of Washington, and no precedent could be found to guide them in their action. Many old officials were personal friends of General Grant and all loved and honored him, and nearly all the clerks and officials who have been in the service any length of time have some pleasant recollection of the war hero and president and his pleasant face and figure were familiar to them all. His simple and kind manners were discussed in every room, and by clerks meeting in corridors, and genuine grief at his loss was manifested on every hand. Some of the clerks who had had occasion to see President Grant at the White house told how simple and kind he was in his manner of receiving, how he would put them at their ease, giving them a chair with his own hands, handing them a cigar or a glass of wine, and how, if he happened to be going out just as they were he would walk with them as far as their course lay in the same direction, smoking and talking pleasantly.

A UNIVERSAL OPINION

It was the universal opinion that if interment [illegible] and would take place here The soldiers' home was suggested as the most suitable resting place for the dead hero's remains. Arlington was also suggested, and it was said that every clerk, every official, Grand Army of the Republic posts, members of the army [illegible] [illegible] and prominent people from all over the country would be here if the funeral [illegible] would be the last grand [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and many other officials will attend, and personal friends of the family will attend to the funeral [illegible] [illegible] The funeral, wherever it is held, will be most impressive, but it will be much more imposing if it takes place at the national capital.

When the sad announcement was taken to General Logan he was overcome with grief, as though he had lost a brother and he determined at once to start for New York.

The crape that is being placed on the interior department building is very elaborate. All four fronts will be covered with emblems of mourning and the pillars will be heavily wrapped. The work of dressing the postoffice building began this morning. The district buildings closed to-day at 1 o'clock, the executive order to the departments of the general government being followed without any special order from the commissioners. Arrangements were made for draping in mourning the building and the commissioners will consult as to the proper steps to be taken to show officially the respect and esteem with which General Grant was regarded by the citizens of the district.

Ex-confederate soldiers resident in Washington informally determined that, should the general be buried here, they would take steps to testify their appreciation of the man and soldier by turning out en masse at the funeral.

AT GRANT'S OLD HEADQUARTERS

Chief Engineer Snyder, superintendent of the state, war and navy departments, borrowed a flag from the war department and had Rigger Crowley place it in position on small halyards for an old flag staff on the little building at the southwest corner of Seventeenth and F streets which was at one time General Grant's headquarters, now used by clerks from the second auditor's office. In a few minutes the flag floated at half mast from the former headquarters of the great citizen.

Members of the congregation of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church where the general attended, will probably make arrangements for a meeting for special services to be held in memory of General Grant. In case the remains are brought to this city the use of the church will be tendered for holding funeral services.

Professor Widdows, who plays the chimes in the Metropolitan church, has [illegible] to the church this morning, as soon as he learned of General Grant's death and tolled minute bells for an hour on the large chimes and then played dirges at intervals. In conclusion he struck General Grant's age, sixty-three strokes, on the large bell. General Grant was present on Thanksgiving day, 1871, when the chimes were dedicated. One of the bells was a gift to Mrs. Grant and bears her name.

THE WHITE HOUSE DRAPED

The White house has been handsomely draped in emblems of mourning being equal to those on the building at the time of the death of President Garfield. They are over and around the windows and doors facing north, and the great pillars of the portico at the north entrance are also covered with black.

The News Reaches General Sheridan at Fort Reno—At Grant's Old Home

FORT RENO, July 23.—News of the death of General Grant reached General Sheridan this morning by means of a dispatch sent from the office of the associated press in Chicago. In response to inquiries concerning arrangements for the funeral General Sheridan said: "It is so far away from Washington that I will have to depend [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] to carry out my orders [illegible] [illegible] may give [illegible] [illegible] relative to General Grant's funeral. During his critical illness last March and on intimation from persons [illegible] of the family that it would be agreeable, the comrades of the soldiers' Home requested the privilege of having the general's remains interred at the home. It is hoped the family will grant it. I continued General Sheridan, "so that his ashes may rest near the capitol of the nation, guarded by veterans of the war in which his greatest honors were won."

General Sheridan sent the following telegrams upon the receipt of said information:

Colonel F. D. Grant, Mt. McGregor, New York: Will you please express to Mrs. Grant my grief at the loss of my dearest friend and comrade and my sincere sympathy and condolence with her in this hour of her great distress.

P. H. SHERIDAN, Lieutenant General.

To General R. C. Drum, Washington, D. C.: My duties here will not permit my return in time for the funeral of my dearest friend and comrade, General U. S. Grant, Lieutenant Colonel W. [illegible] of my staff knows my wishes in reference to the obsequies. Have them carried out as far as they do not conflict with the directions of the president. I want to be named as one of the pall bearers.

P. H. SHERIDAN, Lieutenant General.

AT PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, July 23.—Regarding the funeral arrangements and final burial place of General Grant it is learned that George W. Childs will have sole control of all matters connected therewith and he probably will be called upon to select the spot for the last resting place of the dead hero. Childs intended to leave for Mt. McGregor to-day but being second not further notice he has delayed, waiting to the further request by the family as to their movements. He is in constant telegraphic communication with Colonel Fred Grant who by request of Childs is taking the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the family [illegible] [illegible] of all [illegible] connected with the funeral preparations, and has also through his judgment the arrangement of all the principal points.

The mayor having called a special meeting of the council to-morrow there will be adopted and undoubtedly passed a resolution asking that the body be allowed to lie in state in the city hall for one day.

AT BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, July 23.—The Fifth Maryland regiment, now encamped at Atlantic City, to-day telegraphed Colonel Fred Grant offering to act as escort through the state should it be decided to bring General Grant's body to Washington, and Mayor Latrobe tendered the use of the city hall, in case the family will permit the body to rest in the city en route.

AT GRANT'S OLD HOME.

GALENA, Ill., July 23.—The announcement of the death of General Grant is received in Galena, his old home, from whence he went to the war, with the most profound sorrow. On receipt of the news church bells tolled, on the custom house and all public buildings flags are flying at half mast, and public buildings, churches, business houses and private residences are draped in emblems of mourning. General W. R. Rowley, the only surviving member of the old commander's staff and now the only survivor of the great military family circle and whose wife died but a few weeks ago is prostrated with grief. Business in the city is practically suspended. Mayor Barrett has called a meeting of the city council to make arrangements for proper memorial service to take place at the time of the funeral.

PROBABLY WEST POINT

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Colonel Frederick T. Dent, General Grant's brother-in-law, who is now a resident of this city, was asked yesterday if he knew what place had been selected for the general's burial. He replied that he did not, although he had made inquiry on the subject when at Mount McGregor recently. From a remark made then to him by a member of General Grant's family he inferred that a positive selection had been made by the general, but that it was known only to himself, Mrs. Grant and Colonel Fred Grant. He was inclined to think, however, that the general had not selected Washington, but possibly West Point.

IN THE SOUTH

NEW YORK, July 23.—Dispatches from cities all over the south and from numerous points on the Atlantic coast and the middle states show that the general's death is received with universal sorrow. This is strongly marked in the south and all the leading papers of that portion of the country comment editorially in the warmest terms of praise of the "hero of Appomattox." Comparisons and contrasts are drawn between the two great bodies who met there, one as victor the other as vanquished. Nearly all the leading commercial exchanges adjourned at once or passed resolutions of respect, and decided to adjourn on the day of the funeral.

DENVER, July 23.—The city is draped in mourning. Steps have been already taken looking to proper observance of the funeral. Grant, Jr., left for New York this evening.

ON THIS COAST

Universal Respect and Sorrow Manifested by the People Everywhere

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—Arrangements had been made that as soon as the death of General Grant was received here it should be immediately communicated to the city fire alarm department which would announce the fact to the inhabitants of the city by tolling the bell. This was done as arranged at within a few minutes of the receipt of the first bulletin announcing the dread fact. The fire alarm bell tolled out sixty-four times, being once for every year of the old hero's life. Minute guns were fired from all the United States government forts and flags were raised at half mast on all public buildings, and also on all private dwellings whose owners possessed a flag. The expression of sympathy for the dead general in his long period of intense suffering, and for Mrs. Grant in her great affliction is heard on all sides. Large sized [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] with [illegible]

The chamber of commerce, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] association, board of trade and produce exchange held a joint meeting at [illegible] o'clock P. A meeting of members of the Grand Army of the Republic was called this morning to take action for the arrangement of appropriate ceremonies in this city as a token of respect to General Grant. A committee of three was appointed to confer with the mayor and board of supervisors. Another meeting will be held this evening. It was decided to suggest that Governor Stoneman be requested to make the day of the funeral a legal holiday.

AT SALEM

SALEM, July 23.—The news of the death of General Grant was received here at 8 o'clock this morning by a private dispatch to Governor Moody from Colonel I. H. Lamb of your city. The national colors over the state capitol and Governor Moody's residence were at once lowered to half mast while the city bell and various church bells rung forth their solemn requiems. The grief that is manifest is universal and by no means confined to party sentiment. All have watched with interest the various stages of his affliction and hoping against hope have wished for his recovery, realizing at the same time the precariousness of his situation and awaiting with patience the final summons. It has come and Grant is no more. His name, however, will remain as a synonym of greatness and his virtues never can be forgotten while recollection of what he has done for us remain green in memory's hall. His failings were few, and they are mere trifles when compared with his noble and endearing qualities which will be forever [illegible] remembrances susceptible of criticism will soon pass into oblivion. Our citizens will unite in any public demonstration that may be deemed appropriate for the occasion at any time in the future. The various state departments have been closed as a mark of respect to his memory. The OREGONIAN, with its graphic account of his last hours and the news of his death was eagerly sought after, the publication of the latter being a piece of journalistic enterprise that was appreciated.

LONDON, July 23.—United States Minister Phelps on being handed the copy of the associated press dispatch announcing General Grant's death expressed the greatest concern at the sad event. He instantly ordered the building of the American legation draped in mourning and the flag placed at half mast.

Your correspondent visited Mr. Gladstone to make known his errand. Mrs. Gladstone expressed deep sorrow at the death of the great American, and immediately conducted him to Mr. Gladstone's presence. Gladstone was at his desk. Said he: "I shall willingly pay my humble tribute. Let me write rather than speak." He then wrote as follows: "Mr. Gladstone has heard with regret the sad news of General Grant's death. He ventures to assure the bereaved family of the sympathy he feels with them in their affliction at the loss of one who had rendered his country such signal services as a great general and statesman."

Many prominent Americans have called a meeting, to be held to-morrow at the American legation, for the purpose of taking appropriate action on the death of General Grant, and to condole with his family.

John Bright, in an interview at the Reform club this afternoon, said: "I desire to express my sympathy with the family of General Grant, in the sorrow through which they are passing."

Marriage of Princess Beatrice and Prince Henry.

THE EVENT OCCURS AT OSBORNE.

How the Bride was Dressed and how she Behaved—The March from the Palace to the Church, and the Ceremony at the Altar

OSBORNE, July 23—Noon. The marriage of Princess Beatrice, youngest daughter of Queen Victoria, to Prince Henry of Battenberg, is to take place to-day at St. Mildred church, Whippingham, six miles from Osborne. The weather is lovely. A gentle breeze is blowing, and serves to temper the heat. Flags of all nations float from the house-tops, and the river and bay are full of yachts brilliant with bunting and presenting from the land [illegible] [illegible] appearance. The royal yachts stand out prominently. The royal standard is at their main heads and they are decked with wreaths of evergreens and flowers in profusion.

Over 100 guests of the queen breakfasted this morning in the palace at Osborne. At 11 o'clock the guests started for the church. The officials present, who are resplendent in court dress and wear glittering orders upon their breasts, present a peculiar appearance in the royal carriages, passing along the country roads.

The Prince of Wales and members of his family landed from their yacht and were driven to Osborne. The Prince of Wales wears the uniform of a field marshal. His son Victor is dressed in the uniform of an army officer, and his son George in that of an officer of the navy.

The Ninety-third Highlanders guard the approaches to the church, while the road traversed by the procession is lined by volunteers. The sailors belonging to the royal yachts have taken a position between the volunteers and highlanders.

The queen has been with Princess Beatrice throughout the morning. The chief state officials are now preparing to direct the pageantry.

1:30 P. M.—The stream of court officials going to the church is increasing. The crowd of people who have come to witness the pageant now is immense, and at the palace gates they stand ten deep. The archbishop of Canterbury, the dean of Windsor and other clergymen who will assist in the ceremonies have arrived at the church which is already thronged. The Princess of Wales and the bridesmaids, dressed in lovely white gossamer material, are much admired. A salute of twenty one guns is now being fired from the Solent.

[illegible] P. M.—The marriage ceremony is ended. A salvo of guns from the guard ship has just announced the fact.

INCIDENTS OF THE CEREMONY

The bridal procession started from the palace at fifteen minutes after 1. Enthusiastic shouting and cheering greeted the pageant as it emerged from the gates and the demonstration was taken up and continued by people along the whole route to the church. Five bands of music posted at different points on the route played at intervals.

Inside the church demi-toilets were enjoined for ladies who slept last night on the island. Guests who arrived from London to-day were permitted to appear in morning dress. When all was in readiness the choir, followed by the clergy, passed to the altar to prepare to receive the bride.

The queen left the palace for the church shortly before 1 o'clock. The procession made its entrance into the church along a covered way through the churchyard. Equerrys passed in first, then followed the foreign guests, and then the royal family. When all had entered the edifice the organists [illegible] "Occasional Overture." All the royal ladies present wore dresses of white gossamer [illegible]. The prince and princess of Wales did not join in the procession. They both remained at the entrance to the church.

Prince Henry, the bridegroom, wore a white uniform and on the front of his coat were numerous orders. He passed into the church accompanied by members of his royal house. The bridesmaids were in the vestry in which they had been waiting to receive the bride.

The arrival of the queen with the bride was heralded with cheers and a royal salute. Pipers played the march "Highland Laddie" and the guns thundered a grand salute. The queen entered the church on the bride's left. The prince of Wales was on the right of the bride.

AT THE ALTAR

[illegible] is followed the princess and bowed to the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] she advanced up the aisle. The scene as the queen, dressed in black, with face and wearing a miniature diamond crown, entered the church was very impressive. The bride looked very pretty. She was dressed in ivory satin with Honiton lace. Her hair was artistically arranged and its effect was made more charming by a wreath of orange blossoms she wore. The princess of Wales wore a costume of white [illegible]. Prince Henry stood at the south side of the altar and awaited the bride. The princess walked with firm step up the aisle while Wagner's bridal march was being played.

The archbishop of Canterbury read the service, the bride and bridegroom responding in clear tones which were heard throughout the building. The queen gave the bride away.

At the close of the service Mendelssohn's anthem was sung. The queen, Prince Henry and [illegible] [illegible] both sides kissed the bride. As the bridal party left the church Mendelssohn's wedding march was played. The dress which Princess Beatrice will wear in starting on her bridal trip is of figured China crape of a soft cream color, looped up on the left side by long loops with ends of cream moire ribbon. The loops are drawn through buttonholes made in the skirt. She will also wear a [illegible] of the same material having two square [illegible] [illegible] trimmed with crape lace.

The bridesmaids dresses were of embroidered silk muslin over ivory satin and petticoats of [illegible] of Mechlin lace with a design of orange flower buds over [illegible] [illegible] trimmed with the same lace.

LONDON, July 23.—Michael Davitt has written a letter to Joseph S. Chamberlain, radical leader, in which he says he would be proud to stand with Chamberlain on any platform during the proposed visit of the latter to Ireland. He declares he will remain an unrelenting enemy of England's power in Ireland.

MORE MACHINE POETRY BY TENNYSON

LONDON, July 23.—All the morning papers to-day contain a blank verse poem of twenty-two lines by Tennyson, addressed to Princess Beatrice, on her wedding day. The central idea is to compliment her royal highness on not quitting her maternal home and mingling filial and bridal love. It is a machine-like production and lacks spontaneity.

Marriage and Health.

Hillsboro, [illegible] No. [illegible] 1885. Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham: As is frequently the case with mothers who have reared large families, I have been a great sufferer for years from complaints incident to married life. I have tried the skill of a number of physicians and the virtue of many medicines without relief, and as an experiment I concluded to try yours. I can assure you that the benefits I have derived from it came not because of any faith I had in it, for I had but slight hope of any permanent good. I am not a seeker after notoriety, but I want to tell you that I have been wonderfully benefited by your medicine. I am now using my fourth bottle, and it would take but little argument to persuade me that my health is fully restored. I should like to widely circulate the fact of its wonderful curative powers." ### HISTORICAL DEMOCRACY.

A democratic paper published in Curry county, called the Oregon Recorder, is incensed at THE OREGONIAN because, in its sketch of ex-Senator Nesmith it called him a "free state democrat." The statement that Mr. Nesmith was among the opponents of slavery is a "torturing of history" that it deeply resents, regarding the same as an unworthy reflection upon him as a man and a democrat. "The question of slavery," it sagely says, "had been settled so far as Oregon was concerned, in the adoption of a state constitution three years before." Consequently Mr Nesmith could not have been a "free state democrat," since that was a distinction which was unnecessary, and would have been impossible, in Oregon. To the people of Oregon, however, the slavery question appeared to have a somewhat wider range than the limits of their own state. The pro-slavery democracy, which constituted then the effective strength of the party as the confederate democracy constitutes it now, held and insisted that the slaveowner could take his slaves into the free territories and hold them there, and this was the basis of a great effort by the south to found and create additional slave states. The republicans held that the slaveowner had no right to take his slaves into the free territories and hold them there and this antagonism of the parties was the great fight of twenty-five years ago. Between the two parties thus opposing each other the Douglas democracy took a middle position, holding that the people of a territory might say whether they would have slavery or not, but, in the main, opposing the extension of slavery and wishing to avoid the creation of additional slave states. Mr. Nesmith, as a Douglas democrat, was thus a "free state man." He opposed the further extension of slavery—though as republicans we could not think that he and his associates did it in the most logical and effective way. Some of them were very pronounced in their views against the creation of additional slave states; others less so; but Mr. Nesmith was among the former class. Later, when the question of submitting to the states the amendment to abolish slavery came before the senate he voted for it, and was the only democratic senator who did so—Tom Hendricks and others voting against it.

Thus in the long controversy over slavery Mr. Nesmith was a decided "free state man," and nothing else. If the question was not before the people of Oregon in 1860, when Mr. Nesmith was elected to the senate, it might be worth while for the pro-slavery organ of Curry county to tell what it was that divided the democratic party of Oregon in the presidential election of that year into two parties of nearly equal strength. Between the republicans and democrats of Mr. Nesmith's stamp there was at that time an affinity that made it possible for them to coalesce, and the election of Nesmith and Baker to the senate was the fruit of an alliance altogether natural in the circumstances.

The Oregon Recorder closes its peculiar "vindication" of Mr. Nesmith with the remark that "during a long and active career in politics he was a democrat of the staid and sturdy sort, if we except his war attitude during a part of his term in the senate." That is to say, it was contrary to democratic principles to urge the prosecution of the war for suppression of the rebellion and restoration of the Union. Undoubtedly it was; yet right here was where the patriotism of men like Mr. Nesmith rose superior to party. The Curry county democratic organ is an excellent and faithful representative of the democratic party as it has been, and of the inmost feeling of a great majority of democrats now. The Portland Standard, if it wants to please its party, should give mugwumpery and half-way republicanism "the shake," and try to catch this same inspiration. If it does not it will get "badly left."

Mr. Nesmith, though actuated by a patriotism never surpassed, and though possessed of abilities of the first order, never could get the favor of the democratic party of Oregon, for the reason that he had opposed the extension of slavery, helped to abolish slavery, and supported the government actively in the prosecution of the war against the rebellion. Even after he has passed away a democratic paper brings up this history as a reproach to his fidelity to his party, and beyond doubt it voices the sentiment of the majority. But the fame of men like Mr Nesmith has a principle of perennial growth. Such fame grows and will grow—to borrow a Horatian simile—as a great tree grows through silent ages.

A FEAT OF JOURNALISM.

Yesterday morning's dispatch announcing the death of General Grant bore date, as printed, of 7:10 A. M. It should have been an hour later. The precise time of his death was 8:08. The announcement reached THE OREGONIAN at nearly half-past 5. The paper had been held back in expectation of it, but as it grew late there was danger of losing the mails, so the forms were sent down to the press. Just as the great machine was ready to start the telegraph told that Grant had passed away. The forms were lifted quickly, the news was put in type, articles that had been prepared in anticipation of the event were inserted, and in a very few minutes the forms were again on the press.

To save time at an hour of the morning when minutes to a newspaper are of utmost importance, and to get the announcement of the death of General Grant in the paper, if the event should occur in time to render it possible, arrangements had been made to have it telephoned in from the telegraph office the moment the wires should announce it. After the forms had been sent to the press, as above related, and everything was just ready for the start, the call of the telephone came from the telegraph office carrying the message, "Grant is dead." "At what hour is the dispatch dated?" was the return inquiry. The time had not been stated, and the operator was requested to ask. He did so, and the answer came from Ogden, "At 7:10." Subsequently it was ascertained that the time was an hour later. Ogden had probably given Chicago time. The difference in time between here and Mount McGregor is just about three hours, and as we got the announcement at just 5:25, the delay caused by handling could not have been more than about fifteen minutes.

Now came a time to prove the resources of a great printing machine. It wouldn't do to miss the early mails, and distribution to city subscribers was growing urgent, as it was near 6 o'clock. The machine started and was pushed to its best speed, the great double sheet, cut, pasted and folded, came off the press faster than all hands were able to distribute it. Express, mails and city carriers were supplied with wonderful rapidity, and the entire edition of more than ten thousand copies was off in three-quarters of an hour.

This is an illustration of what a fast printing machine will do. It enables a newspaper of large circulation to hold its columns open to a late hour of the morning and yet give the public the news in good season. It was for just such feats as this that THE OREGONIAN prepared itself by getting its perfecting press built. For a paper whose circulation does not go above eighteen or twenty thousand the type-printing press is better than the stereotype machine, because it saves much time. Had we been forced to stereotype the forms of yesterday's paper, we would have lost some mails and the city circulation would have suffered considerable delay. If the San Francisco papers of yesterday morning published the announcement of General Grant's death, their editions undoubtedly appeared later than that of THE OREGONIAN because of the time consumed in stereotyping their forms. When the circulation of a paper becomes very large it is necessary to stereotype, of course, since several presses must be run to print their editions.

Incidents like that of yesterday show that a newspaper, to be of service to the public, must have resources for doing business, and that its resources must at times be tried to the utmost.

St. Louis is affording strong evidence of the effect of even moderately high license in reducing the number of drinking saloons. Ordinarily St. Louis has 1600 saloons. Under the recent law of Missouri, which puts the license for spirits, beer or wine at $550, the number of saloons will be reduced to 1200, from which St Louis will derive a revenue of $660,000. Chicago obtains $1,250,000 from a uniform license of $500. Milwaukee from a license of $200, obtains something less than $200,000. "If," says the Wisconsin, "the license tax was $500 in Milwaukee, our city treasury would receive at least $350,000 annually from this source."

THE UMATILLA RESERVATION AGAIN.

The people of Umatilla county who, naturally, are deeply interested in the effort to open the Umatilla reservation to general settlement, insist that there are two sides to the question, and that the recent discussion has presented but one of them. A citizen of Pendleton who is now in Portland declares that the refusal of the Indians to accept the terms of the Slater bill is not, as the reports have made it appear, a unanimous one, but that, on the contrary, the Indians as a mass are in favor of the proposed settlement. He declares that a few old chiefs who do not represent the wishes of their people, but who through their supposed authority are made prominent in the negotiations, have been cajoled and frightened into an attitude of obstruction by a few disreputable men who make profit out of the present situation. These men are either half-breeds or white men married to squaws who, through their connection with the Indians, live upon the reservation and enjoy all its advantages of range, etc. If the reservation were thrown open they would have to give up privileges, which in some instances yield a handsome revenue. One example is given where a white man, through his Indian wife and her people, holds 2200 acres of fine wheat land. His tenure and that of others like him depends entirely upon the present status of affairs, and they are naturally active in spreading alarm among the Indians and thereby promoting resistance to the plans of the government.

It is asserted that the progressive members of the tribe are anxious for a change which will make them individually the owners of the land which they occupy. Many of them have selected locations and are as eager to get definite titles as an equal number of white squatters would be. They complain bitterly of the obstructive efforts which promise to defeat their hopes. It is further claimed by the people of Umatilla county that the Indians definitely accepted the plan of location in severalty in the great conference of five years ago, and that the Slater proposition is but a development in detail of the plan already accepted. They claim under this theory that the consent of those Indians who object now is not necessary, holding the agreement of five years ago to be a final, legal and just settlement.

We have these assertions both of fact and argument, at second-hand, and give them as a statement of that "other side" which, it is claimed, has not been fairly set forth before. It is not to be supposed that the people of Umatilla county are entirely unaffected by their very considerable interests in the matter in dispute. An immense tract of land—comprising at the lowest estimate 300,000 acres fit for cultivation—lies in the heart of their county. In the hands of barely 400 Indians it is unproductive and worse than useless. It is an obstruction. If it were opened for general settlement it would add an enormous sum to the taxable values of the county, it would increase the population, it would promote general business in many ways. Besides the general interests enumerated there are many private ones, and all these together form a motive which might of itself be relied on to find the means.

THE WISES, FATHER AND SON.

Mr. Blaine has written a flattering letter to John Sergeant Wise, whom the republicans of Virginia named as their candidate for governor, telling him that good blood and brains ought to win. Wise is a son of the late Henry A. Wise, who was the chief figure in Virginia politics for thirty years or more. As a speaker he inherits his father's wonderful talents, knows the state and its people thoroughly, and is personally popular. The Wises never were in full sympathy with the slave-holding, secession oligarchy of Virginia and the south, and this will sufficiently account for the fact that John S. Wise since the war has been a republican. He will probably be defeated by the usual methods of violence and fraud, for the entire election machinery of the state is in the hands of the Bourbon democrats, but the contest before the people promises to be the most interesting which the state has witnessed since the remarkable contest that terminated in the election of Wise's father against the know nothing candidate in 1855.

A writer in the Philadelphia Times records some of the incidents of that remarkable campaign. The elder Wise, as candidate for the governorship, was making a speech at Alexandria. After speaking of the curse of slavery and of the wonderful mineral and other natural resources of the Old Dominion, he said, among other things: "And yet commerce has long ago spread her sails and sailed away from you. You have not as yet dug more than coal enough to warm yourselves at your own hearth. You have set no tilt-hammer of Vulcan to strike blows worthy of the gods in the iron foundries. You have not yet spun more than coarse cotton enough in the way of manufacture to clothe your own slaves. You have had no commerce, no mining, no manufactures. You have relied alone on the single power of agriculture, and such agriculture! Your ledge patches outshine the sun. Your inattention to your only source of wealth has scared the very bosom of mother earth. Instead of having to feed cattle on a thousand hills, you have had to chase the stump-tailed deer through the ledge patches to procure a tough beefsteak."

This was somewhat exaggerated, but it was funny and fine. We reproduce it now chiefly for the opportunity it gives of saying that we ought to have a good deal of talk in Oregon in this same vein. It would hit admirably the lethargy, the drowsiness, the contented indolence and shiftlessness so prevalent among us, both in town and country. Varying the illustrations used by Wise, so as to suit the conditions of Oregon wherein they differ from those of Virginia, this kind of oratory is one of our needs.

About the silliest of all the silly things of the times is the twaddle that the Northern and Union Pacific railroads will run vessels from China and Japan to Tacoma and Portland, and take from San Francisco her trans-Pacific commerce. This will succeed about the time when Portland, Maine, and Charleston, South Carolina, take away from New York the trans Atlantic trade. Give us booms, and also give us common sense.

We are asked why this paper "always speaks disrespectfully of Vice President Hendricks"—calling him "Old Tom Hendricks." Just because he was an old pro-slavery doughface, was an extreme copperhead of the type that was worse than active rebel in arms, and is still a blatant demagogue, an unscrupulous politician and a professional office-seeker and spoils hunter. Therefore he is entitled to no man's respect.

English army lists now contain the names of only three Waterloo officers—General George Whitecote who joined the army in 1811, the earl of Albemarle, who entered the army only two months before the battle, and Lieutenant Andrew Gardner, who entered the army in 1811. But this country can beat all others. We have any number of pensioners of the war of 1812 and expect to have till the middle of next century.

Now the question is raised, what has become of that code of civil procedure of which Dr Thucydides Dawne is author? Who has seen the book? Perhaps the doctor has never published it, but keeps it as a book for himself to practice law by. And perhaps again this is the reason why he has won so high a name at the bar.

---

Even in Dakota the people are beginning to turn their attention to diversified farming. Hitherto they have devoted themselves, as most farmers in Oregon have done, to exclusive and persistent wheat-growing.

GENERAL GRANT AND THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

Democratic papers, writing of the death of General Grant, are maundering in the peculiar democratic way, for the purpose of getting in a "rebuke" of the republican party. Grant's "perfect charity towards the south" is their text, and they essay to put it in contrast with what they call the narrow and proscriptive feelings and conduct of the republican party.

Now, be it remembered that General Grant had a political as well as a military career. His history as to both careers is equally definite and well understood. On all questions which have divided parties since he became known to the country and to fame he has been a thorough republican, in full and earnest accord with republican measures, principles and policy. As president of the United States during eight years he showed this; he showed it again when he appeared before the people in 1880 to advocate the election of Garfield, and again in 1884 when, though too weak in health to take an active part in behalf of Blaine, he published a statement to the effect that he believed Blaine ought to be elected and that he himself would vote to uphold the republican party, at least until the right of every elector, white or black, to vote as he chose and have his vote counted as he cast it, was fully secured.

The republican party has taken no position in regard to the south that has not been sustained and approved by General Grant. Indeed, in many instances, he has been in advance of the party on measures relating to the south, and the party cannot be "rebuked" in his name for keeping alive the questions involved in or growing out of the rebellion. He was anxious that justice should be done and the exercise of equal rights secured; and that is just the position of the republican party. He believed that to obtain these results the ascendency of the republican party in the government was essential, and he acted accordingly. He was magnanimous, undoubtedly, as the democratic organs now concede; but how long has it been since they were heaping upon him every sort of foul abuse, because, in the administration of the government, he was the true exponent of the policy of the republican party toward the south?

It must be a sad trial to that good man Lamar to have to run the flag up at half-mast over his department as a token to the memory of General Grant. His last feat in that line was in honor of Jake Thompson.

---

Says the Cincinnati Enquirer, big democratic organ of the great middle states: "It is gratifying to note that democratic newspapers are awakening to the stupendous idiocy of the civil service law."

---

The Boston Post wittily remarks: "Late raising bids fair to prove a success in Oregon. Here in the east they raise the amount, but don't bother their heads much about the date."

---

General Grant's article on "Vicksburg" will appear in the September Century. It is probable that more than half a million copies will be sold.

PRESS PITH.

"Mamma," asked Carrie, "can you tell me what part of heaven people live in who are good, but not agreeable?"—Boston Post.

Mrs. Gladstone is said to make no mistakes. Then it is as we suppose. William is alone responsible for the Soudan campaign.—St. Paul Globe.

A Burlington girl has an album in which are preserved the photographs of all the young gentlemen who have flirted with her. She calls it her "rogues' gallery."—Free Press.

Joaquin Miller's latest poems were thin stuff. The Springfield Republican kindly advises him to "fill up." The poem reads like a production of a man already filled up.—Atlanta Constitution.

Fencing is the new craze among young ladies. Well, if they will occupy the fence occasionally it will give the gate a rest, and the whole business will wear out together.—Dansville Breeze.

"Oh, was it I, or was it you?" asks the golden haired poet, Nora Perry. If Nora will refrain from making a noise, perhaps between us we can shove it on to the proof reader.—Buffalo Express.

A girl with three arms is an attraction in a Louisiana side show. She can play the piano with two of them and turn the music with the other, thus saving the expense of a young man.—Drake's Travelers' Magazine.

Before making up your mind that we are going to have a dull, stupid sort of time this summer, wait till the new Turkish minister has had a chance to adjust himself to the east end of the wire.—Washington Republican.

President Cleveland has gained ten pounds of flesh since he went into the white house. That is a greater gain than the whole army of office seekers combined have made. Veteran stock dealers have always insisted that the conditions for fattening were better in the pen than out.—St Paul Globe.

"And is there any cause for this man's removal?" asked the president. "Cause for his removal!" exclaimed the astonished politician, "cause for his removal! Why, there are no less than thirteen men to whom I have promised the place! Cause for his removal! Well, I should say so!"—Boston Transcript.

Miss Cleveland's book, which has just been published, is having an enormous sale, and it is probably being purchased by every office seeker in the country in the hope that it may contain a clew to the Cleveland character which will enlighten them as to the most effective way to tackle the man at the white house.—Philadelphia Press.

POLITICAL EXPRESSION.

Baltimore American: There is a growing suspicion that Senator Arthur P. Gorman has lost his key to the White house.

Philadelphia Times: Nearly all the men who are going to defeat Senator Edmunds' re-election, happen to live in another state.

Boston Herald: The republican leaders, if wise, will welcome the division of the colored vote as a means of giving their party the white support at the south needed to rehabilitate the party, and the democrats will welcome it as ending the race issue and relieving them from a precarious reliance on a solid south as their hope of retaining power.

Chicago Times: The zeal for office-getting is well illustrated by the fact that the Spanish mission, although the cholera is killing off victims in Spain at the rate of a thousand a day, is sought after by scores of applicants. It is unfortunate that, just at this time, while cholera is the most active, the president is not able to appoint a few hundred of the most pestiferous office-beggars to that mission.

New York Sun: It is notorious that many republicans have so high an opinion of Mr Evarts' talents for the senate that they insist upon his staying there and being content with the game he has bagged without trying to bring down something bigger. But all these admirers of Mr. Evarts will give their consent to his blazing away at the vice presidency. Hit or miss, he will still be kept in the senate.

Boston Journal: The postmaster-general's arbitrary action in refusing to expend for the ocean mails the money appropriated for that purpose promises to result in serious delay and interruption to the service. Mr. Vilas exhibits a remarkable zeal in discouraging American mail carriers and turning the money over to foreign vessels, even at the cost of securing a delayed and circuitous service.

The Queen and Beatrice.

It is very evident that the queen of England and her family have no love of purple and fine linen when they are "off duty." "Our royal family have always been dowdy," said a loyal English woman at Aix-les-Bains, as she returned from presenting some flowers to the princess Beatrice on her birthday.

"Well," said an outsider, "what did the princess wear? I desire to know what clothes princesses wear when they are at home in the morning."

"An old checked black-and-white silk dress, which I should have given to my maid," answered the loyal English woman, "but she was very lovely and courteous, and blushed and stammered, and was frightened when we offered her the flowers, just like any other girl. I could not help loving her for it."

On another occasion the queen sent for the doctors of Aix and their wives, who, being French women, were of course beautifully dressed. On being asked what the queen wore, one of the ladies said, "A very plain, short black cashmere dress, rather the worse for wear, with no ornament excepting the picture of Prince Albert at her neck."

"And how were her manners?" asked her interlocutor.

"Very simple, unostentatious, kindly and dignified."

She speaks French perfectly, without an accent, and talked to the doctor of the scenery, the history of Savoy, the treatment, baths, etc. I did not feel that she was the queen until she rose, which was her signal to us that the interview was at an end. Then a certain dignity, a certain habit of command, clothed her short, stout figure as with a royal mantle, and she looked the queen.

INGERSOLL INTERVIEWED.

The Eloquent Infidel's Opinion of the New Revision—"Sheol" a Great Relief.

NEW YORK, July 15.—In an interview to-day, Colonel Robert Ingersoll of Illinois said of the revised Old Testament: "I do not believe the work has been fairly done. The clergy are not going to scrape the butter off their own bread. The clergy are offensive partisans, and those of each denomination will wrest the scriptures their way. No Baptist minister would countenance a revision that favored sprinkling, and no Catholic priest would admit that any version would be correct that destroyed the dogma of the real presence. Sheol is a great relief. It is not so hot as the old place. The nights are comfortable and the society is quite refined. The worms are dead and the air reasonably free from noxious vapors. It is not much of a word to hold a revival with, but much better for every-day use. It will hardly take the place of the old word, when people step on tacks, put up stoves, or sit on pins, but for use at church fairs and mite societies it will do about as well. No one can over-estimate the misery and insanity that have been caused by the frightful doctrine of eternal revenge. It has broken millions of hearts, filled countless eyes with tears, darkened the lives of a hundred generations and filled thousands of asylums with the insane. Sheol is the better word."

"What about Mr. Beecher's sermons on evolution?" was asked.

"Mr. Beecher's sermons on evolution will do good. Millions of people believe that Mr. Beecher knows at least as much as the other preachers, and if he regards the atonement as a dogma, with a mistake for a foundation, they may conclude that the whole system is a mistake."

Suppose it had been Blaine.

From the Iowa State Register.

Commissioner Sparks says the Maxwell grant was fraudulent. Mr. Bayard, while a member of the private land claims committee of the senate, before which Mexican and Spanish grants come for confirmation, gave a written opinion, saying the title was good and valid, for which the parties selling the grant paid him $3000. Suppose Mr. Blaine had sold his opinion while serving on that or any other committee in the senate, what would have been said? A prominent democrat remarked the other day that he would not have been permitted to live in the country. Yet the mugwump and democratic admirers of Bayard, under this expose of the frosty and frescoed chevalier, have nothing to remark and are as meek as Moses.

Democratic Ground of Complaint.

Cleveland Plaindealer (Dem.)

The democrats are confronted with a law which says to them they must not make any changes in office, that they must not remove any of the republicans, but must sit down and wait until death creates a vacancy. We say that the democrats have just cause for complaint against a law that so binds their hands and that perpetuates in power their political opponents, the verdict of the people notwithstanding.

Where Are You Going?

If you have pain in the back, pale and sallow complexion, bilious or sick headache, eruptions on the skin, coated tongue, sluggish circulation, or a hacking cough, you are going into your grave if you do not take steps to cure yourself. If you are wise you will do this by the use of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," compounded of the most efficacious ingredients known to medical science for giving health and strength to the system through the medium of the liver and the blood.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

A NUT FOR THE POLICE TO CRACK.—Probably no one will dispute the fact that there are several places, if not more, in this city where gambling is carried on almost publicly, and in what is claimed to be an honest manner—that is people who visit them "get a square deal." It appears as if these places were tolerated by the authorities and by public opinion, or if such were not the case they would be closed up. But there are one or two gambling deadfalls, or "brace" games of faro, running here which the public will not and the police must not tolerate. It is impossible that their location is unknown to the police. Such men as Isaac Vogel, Al James, Johnny Foster and other "sure thing men" not so well known here but just as great knaves, are running these games and acting as cappers for them. These fellows manage to swindle any greenhorn who falls into their clutches in one way or another. Only a day or two since an unsophisticated German who had come down from Grant's Pass was persuaded and tempted into putting up $40 to purchase counterfeit greenbacks. He is deserving of but little sympathy, but the sharper who swindled him out of his money should be punished. This sort of thing is going on daily here and is being done by a lot of tramps and vags who should be run out of town. There is a cigar and fruit dealer not far from where the Elite used to be, who is reported to furnish a room for boys to gamble in, and on Saturday nights especially he has a crowd of youngsters there. He needs looking after by the police. If gambling cannot be stopped downright robbery by "sure thing men" can to a great extent, and it must be done

THE CANOE RACE.—The Oneonta Canoe Club gives its first annual race, free to club members only, to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock, sharp, from La Chapelle's boat house. The race can be best seen from the upper deck of any of the steamers in port that lie between Ash street and Madison. There are six entries for the race, and three souvenir prizes for the first, second and third boats, as the club does all in its power to discourage betting, and absolutely prohibits the giving of money prizes. The boats entered are the Allene, by W. H. Walker; Do, by A. C. Emmons; Kid, by A. B. Graham; Acme, by L. Russell, Princess, by Herbert Bradley and the Charon, by John Gill. The course is from La Chapelle's boat house to a stake boat between the ferry and the Mermaid bath house, on the East Portland side, thence around a stake boat moored off the Coloma dock, and back to the place of beginning. Distance, a mile and an eighth. The judges will be H G Macdonald, John A. Brown and Thos. B. Merry, commodore of the club.

MERRILL WINS.—The bicycle race between F T Merrill of this city and Fred S. Rollinson of San Francisco last Saturday evening at Neptune pavilion, Alameda, was won by the former. Merrill not only won the race but increased the distance of half a mile given him as a handicap, thus proving himself the better rider of the two. The San Francisco Call has the following account of the race. "From the start Merrill stood first favorite. His riding was easier than that of Rollinson, and the six laps, or one-half mile, start he was given in the race was maintained throughout the short duration of the trial. Upon the eighth mile Merrill increased the six laps to seven and a half, which seemed to disconcert Rollinson, who discontinued his efforts to win the match by getting off his wheel. His eight miles occupied 33 minutes and 8 seconds. Merrill continued the running and closed in 1 hour, 19 minutes and 52 seconds. On the twentieth mile, on the fourth lap, Merrill fell heavily upon his head, but got up and finished the race."

TAKE YOUR CHOICE.—Many persons who have friends at the seaside take advantage of the cheap fares to run down and spend Sunday. Some go to one place and some to another. Several who visited the shore last Sunday were comparing notes yesterday. One said he paid six bits for his dinner at a hotel, and had nary a bite of fish, clam or crab—nothing but beef, potatoes, string beans, etc., just what he would get at a two-bit restaurant in town, and served in about the same style. The other fellow said he had clam soup, delicious fresh trout, fried clams, and crabs if he would have eaten them, with all the other accessories of a luxurious meal, served in good style, and he paid 50 cents. Nobody asked either of the parties at what hotel he had stopped, but it would seem that there is a great difference in the two establishments. Parties who pay their money can take their choice, if they can find out which is the other.

ANNIE WRIGHT SEMINARY.—In spite of the excellent schools for which Portland is noted, the fact is recognized that it is sometimes desirable to send girls away from home to boarding school. When such is the case parents often prefer to send them near home, and for such the salubrious climate of Puget Sound offers great attractions. A catalogue of the Annie Wright seminary at Tacoma, with a cut of its beautiful building, said to be perfect in all the appliances for health and comfort, has just been received. Mrs. Welch, the principal, and some of the professors and teachers, have acquired a wide reputation and the endowment of $50 000 insures all the necessary help to a thorough education. This school has just finished a most prosperous year and opens again in September

MORE ROLLER MILLS.—In addition to the list of flouring mills published a few days since, as being built or undergoing changes, it is learned that Kratz, Washburn & Co contracted yesterday with O C Gore for a roller mill of a capacity of 100 barrels per day, to be built at Dixie, Polk county. Messrs J D Hurst & Son of Aurora have also contracts with Mr Gore for rolls and other machinery necessary to change their mill to a gradual reduction mill. It looks as if there will not be much use for mill stones in Oregon soon. Some can however be utilized by hanging them around people's necks and casting them in the sea. There will be no difficulty in finding suitable people in numbers sufficient to use up all the mill stones.

WILL TRY AGAIN.—The second shoot between Will Curry and Jos. McNaught, of Seattle, for the diamond badge, was yesterday arranged to take place on Sunday at City View park. Gentlemen of a sporting turn of mind will do well to bet their small change first on this event, for it is about as uncertain an event to bet on as can be imagined. The contestants are so nearly equal in skill as shooters that some unforeseen trifle will decide the match. If Curry loses the badge he will be $100 ahead, and if he wins it he will be in too much luck altogether. However, as Mr McNaught has plenty of coin he will doubtless, in case he loses the match, try another shy at the badge he covets, for the third time is the charm

SEA SIDE RESORT TRIPS.—Until the end of this season the R R. Thompson will run as at present, leaving at 8 30 A. M on Tuesday and Thursday, and at 10 A. M on Saturday, for Astoria, Ilwaco and Clatsop. The Gen Miles waits at Astoria for her, and comes alongside, so that passengers save nothing by starting on the early steamers. The early steamers leave as usual at 6 every morning, except Sunday, from Ash street. The O R. & N tickets are good for return on either the R R Thompson, Wide West or Mountain Queen, which is a great convenience over being compelled to wait for any particular steamer

QUICKEST TRIP YET.—On Saturday the Telephone will leave here at 6 A. M for Astoria, reaching that point at 11 45 returning, leaves Astoria for Portland at 2 P M., arriving here at [illegible] P M the same day. By the following telegram it will be seen that close connection will be made with the Gen Miles for Ilwaco, arriving there at 1 30 P M. "Astoria, July 23.—A. Seely, agent Steamer Telephone: Steamer Gen. Miles will leave for Ilwaco immediately after arrival of Telephone on Saturday July 25. (Signed) J H D Gray"

BEAUTIFUL DESIGN OF MOURNING.—In one of Meier & Frank's large show windows rare skill and taste has been displayed by one of their clerks, the window being draped all around with black and white folds, the ground being like waves in black and white, while in the center is a large massive cross of deep black crape standing six feet high, some green ivy and smilax being so arranged as to display the straight lines of the cross and giving it a beautiful yet mournful appearance.

CHINESE BURGLAR ARRESTED.—Policeman Hickey saw a Chinaman endeavoring to dispose of a lot of saws, augers and other carpenter tools at a second hand store yesterday, and arrested him on general principles. Last evening A. Huyner, a carpenter, identified the tools which were stolen from him at the corner of Main and Second streets. As Ah Sam broke a lock to get them, he will probably go to a place where the locks are not easily broken, to-wit the state penitentiary

STREET IMPROVEMENTS.—The sidewalks show that some one is taking notes of the places that need repairs, and seeing that the repairs are made. There have been over 4900 feet of new sidewalks laid within the past six weeks, and many bad places in the streets have been repaired.

THROUGH BY DAYLIGHT.—Saturday night's trip by the Lurline will insure a whole day of sea air, as the 8 o'clock boat (General Miles) connects at that hour, returning at 6 P M to Astoria. This is the merchants' and clerks' trip.

SEEKS DIVORCE AFTER MANY YEARS.—Mrs. Rosa Moore has begun suit in the state circuit court for a divorce from her husband, Wesley Moore. Her complaint in the case was filed yesterday in the office of County Clerk Saunders. She alleges that she is entitled to a divorce because of harsh, cruel and inhuman treatment that has rendered her life burdensome, also on account of her husband's adultery. They were married in Pennsylvania in 1847

QUITE A PARTY SEEKING A HOME.—P. C Smith, of Texas, was among those ticketed for Lane county by the board of immigration yesterday. Mr Smith came as the prospector for twenty others, who left the train of the Central Pacific at Truckee and are coming into the state overland. They will come through southern Oregon to Lane county. Mr. Smith has gone there to spy out a home for himself and this party

CROPS IN YAMHILL.—George Willis of Yamhill county cut his oats last week, says the Reporter. On this same ground he has raised 100 bushels of wheat to the acre. Last week, off a space 55 feet square, Mr Willis cut five shocks, each shock containing 4 sheaves, and each sheaf measured three feet four inches in circumference. The oats measured seven feet high. His timothy heads measured ten inches

"UNCLE JOSH" TO GO TO VANCOUVER.—The Denman Thompson company have made their arrangements to go to Vancouver, playing next Monday evening. The Vancouverites may feel assured that for once at least they will be visited by a first-class company, with a play that for over ten years has never failed to bring hearty laughter from every audience that has witnessed it.

AN OLD MAN MISSING.—Oliver D May, aged 78, left his residence on Lincoln street, between Front and Water, Wednesday forenoon, telling his wife he would be back in 10 minutes. He did not return, and has not been heard of since. He was last seen crossing a foot bridge to Pennoyer's mill, and as he was feeble it is feared that he fell in the river and was drowned.

LEWIS, THE OREGON SPRINTER.—One thousand or more dollars, says the Record-Union, changed hands on a closely-contested foot race at Sacramento a few days ago. Lewis, the Oregonian athlete, caused the slickens sports of Sacramento to shed tears recently when they lost $5000 by the defeat of their pet champion, Stone

GOING UP THE VALLEY.—The Colorado editors returned from the seaside yesterday, and made a trip to Willamette falls last evening. They go up the valley this morning on the regular train, probably as far as Albany. They will not visit Puget sound, but start for home to-morrow at 3 P M.

MARRIED AT THE ST CHARLES PARLORS.—J D Spencer of Eugene and Miss Clara F. Bend of Irvine, were married at the St. Charles hotel parlors last evening, Rev. Mr. Foote, rector of Trinity church officiating. The happy couple leave for Newport, Yaquina bay, this morning, for a bridal tour

ROBBED A CHURCH

The Vestry of St Lawrence's Broken Into by Burglars and Twenty-five Dollars Stolen from Father Orth's Private Desk.

The private apartments of Rev Father Orth, in the vestry of St. Lawrence church, were broken into during his absence between 12 and 1 o'clock yesterday, and $25 in coin stolen from a drawer in his desk.

A lady who lives opposite the church saw two men go up the steps to the vestry door and read the note left by Father Orth, on a slate, in regard to his absence. They then went around to the back part of the vestry and disappeared. When the father returned from his luncheon he found everything in his rooms tossed about and the drawer in which he kept the money taken at collections, standing open and empty. Investigation showed that the robbers had broken open the door to the basement of the vestry, and by a round about way reached a staircase leading to the rooms above, where another lock had been broken. The desk drawer had been unlocked and left open. From appearances the robbery was committed by someone not altogether unfamiliar with the premises. Last winter a number of tramps who solicited charity were given employment by Father Orth, sawing wood in the basement, and it may be some of these who have robbed him. During the afternoon a tramp came to the vestry and solicited charity, but Father Orth was not feeling in a charitable mood, and he ordered the beggar off. Thinking that the fellow might be an associate of those who robbed him the father kept an eye upon him and saw that he was joined by another tramp. The father then arrested them and commanded them to walk along to the city jail. They wanted to know what was the reason of this treatment and Father Orth informed them that he had been robbed and he suspected them. They asserted that they were innocent, saying that they had been discharged from jail in East Portland at [illegible] o'clock. This was found to be false. They gave the names of Peter Stanton and Thomas Yer at the jail and were locked up on charges of begging. The number of tramps and vags in the city is increasing and they are becoming bold when they rob a church in broad daylight.

SCHOOL FUND APPORTIONMENT

IMMIGRATION BOARD NOTES

A T Pintler was among the visitors at the state board rooms yesterday. Mr. Pintler was ticketed to southern Oregon, whither he goes with the intention of investing capital in a sash, door and blind factory

Very choice specimen products from all parts of the state continue to arrive at the state board headquarters, and the rooms begin to assume the aspect of a state fair in miniature. Everything is tastefully arranged and shows to the best advantage

While there is a very marked falling off in the number of immigrant arrivals, as compared to the corresponding period of last month, the number of letters of inquiry is increasing, and the indications for an immense influx of strangers during the fall months are very good

Festus J Wade, secretary of the St Louis, Mo, Agricultural and Mechanical Association, writes to the secretary of the state board to the effect that he has all the conveniences at hand for a specimen or exhibit, and that he will be greatly pleased to extend them to Oregon. The offer is good for October and has been accepted

THE CITY IN MOURNING

How the News of General Grant's Death was Received Here—The Fire Bell Tolled—Flags Hung at Half mast Etc

The news of the death of General Grant was received in the Western Union telegraph office in this city by Western Associated Press for THE OREGONIAN at 6 25 yesterday morning. It was telephoned immediately to THE OREGONIAN, and although the forms were already on the press, they were lifted, the news inserted—two pages being made over—and the forms sent back in the brief space of ten minutes. In just fifteen minutes the carriers were speeding in every direction over the city with the news that was to fill every patriotic heart with sorrow for the dead and sympathy for the living loved ones.

Through some misapprehension Chief Engineer Morgan was not notified of the sad news direct from the telegraph office, as he had expected, and it was not until the member of THE OREGONIAN staff, who had remained the night through, bethought him of the arrangement for tolling the fire bell, that the information was communicated to the department.

Immediately on the receipt of the news the tolling began. Twenty taps were given, each between an interval of twenty seconds. The great brazen tones were flung far and wide over the half slumbering city, rousing households from their beds and attracting the attention of all. A few imagined the old bell was crazy, or that an alarm of fire was being sounded, but nearly every one in the city knew at once that these solemn, measured peals proclaimed that the old hero of Shiloh, and the nation's idol, had passed away forever from earth. Yesterday the city wore a somewhat funereal aspect. From every flagstaff from mast heads of vessels in port and from the jackstaffs of river steamers, colors floated at half mast. This mark of respect to the memory of a statesman and great soldier was not confined exclusively to the citizens of the American nation, for the flags of all nations having a representative here were displayed. English, French, Irish, German, Swiss, Swedish and other colors waved mournfully from all portions of the city. Many business houses and private residences were draped in black, and here and there in stores beautifully designed emblems of sorrow were displayed.

SYMPATHY OF LINCOLN POST, G. A. R.

The following resolution was adopted by Lincoln Post No 4, G. A. R., at their regular meeting last evening

Resolved, That Lincoln Post No. 4, G. A. R., department of Oregon, tender their heartfelt sympathy to the wife and family of our late commander, U. S. Grant, in their bereavement.

R. C. LOWNSBURY, Commander.

COLORADO'S TRIBUTE TO GRANT.

The Members of the Press Association of that State now Visiting in Oregon Adopt Appropriate Resolutions.

While coming up the river the news of the death of General Grant reached the Colorado excursionists, through the columns of THE OREGONIAN. The association was immediately called to order by President Bryan, and after the transaction of some routine business, Mr H B Jeffries, chairman of the committee on resolutions, presented the following

PREAMBLE AND RESOLUTIONS.

WHEREAS, We have just received the melancholy intelligence of the death of the foremost citizen of the republic General and ex President Ulysses S Grant therefore be it

Resolved That we recognize in General Grant one of the greatest captains known to history, a ruler of great firmness moderation and wisdom, a true American patriot and an honest man.

Resolved That his fortitude in adversity and his almost unexampled modesty in the most exalted stations challenge our highest admiration while his kindness and simplicity of character elicit our warmest love

Resolved That the car of this association be draped in mourning during the remainder of our journey

Resolved That these resolutions be spread upon the records of this association and printed in the Portland papers and all the newspapers represented by it

H B JEFFRIES
J D DILLENBACK
W L SLOAN
Committee

The resolutions were unanimously adopted, after which Secretary W F Fabr offered the following tribute as an additional expression of the feelings of the members

IN MEMORIAM

BY W F FABR

Dead! And a nation is weeping,
For one whom Death only could kill
The wave of our sorrow is sweeping
To ocean plain valley and hill
Man's hope in his love though in blindness
But [illegible] as the lingering heart
Was it [illegible] at Life's portal in kindness
Half eager half loth to depart

One ocean repeats to the other
The sorrow that rests on the land
And man unto man is a brother
As deep in the shadow we stand
The nation he saved was his lover,
The nation he loved was his pride
But the arrow has sped life is over
The world knows a hero has died

He is one of the mighty immortals
A halo encircles his name
He goes through the innermost portals
Enrobed in the mantle of fame
Time touching his name and his story
To eternity blazons it on
Immortal in changeable glory
Crowns Grant and the fame he has won

On motion the verses were ordered spread upon the records and printed in connection with the resolutions. After which the association adjourned

THE EAST SIDE

ALLEGED INTIMIDATION

Complaint was lodged in Justice Simpson's court yesterday charging a Chinaman named Chee with the above offense. It appears that defendant entered into contract with Hans Rasmussen, residing at Mount Tabor, to pick his crop of berries, that some time afterwards Rasmussen leased his place to another man of the same name, who accepted the contract with defendant that when berries became cheaper the lessee hired other Chinamen to do the work at a less rate than that stipulated in the contract with defendant, who was told to quit, and that when the new men went to work defendant assaulted them and committed the act complained of. Constable [illegible] arrested defendant and brought him in last night, and he gave bonds for his appearance at 1 o'clock to-day. Justice Simpson having to leave the city, the case will be tried before Recorder Gillespie

MORE TRAMPS.

Wednesday night Mr W H. Meade, clerk of the O [illegible] R. R. Co, telegraphed the authorities that a gang of about two dozen tramps loitering around the depot demanded their attention. The police immediately organized a posse and started for the game, but upon their arrival they found that all except four had anticipated them and escaped, those that remained being impelled thereto by intoxication. These were bagged, three of them making determined but unsuccessful resistance. They were arraigned before the recorder yesterday afternoon for being drunk and disorderly, and pleaded guilty. They all volunteered the usual excuse—that they had just arrived from somewhere else to look for work and begged earnestly to be let off, promising to leave town immediately, never to return. The recorder gave them some wholesome advice, that there was plenty of work to be had in the country for the seeking, and released them conditionally that they leave the city within two hours and that if caught back here within sixty days they would receive the full penalty. The cause of the gang leaving so suddenly and evading arrest was afterwards found to be the connivance of the railroad company's night watchman Tom Kinney, who allowed the men to congregate contrary to orders and posted them to leave in order to screen himself from blame

SPECIAL COUNCIL MEETING

A special meeting of the common council was held last evening for the purpose of re-enacting ordinances existing before the enactment of the new city charter. In the absence of Mayor Gates, F C Wheeler, president of the council, occupied the chair, and all members were present except McAyel. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved and the reading of ordinances was then proceeded with. Eight ordinances were read the first and second times—all that is allowed at one meeting under the new charter—and referred to appropriate committees. They are as follows "Relating to the city recorder," referred to the committee on ways and means; "relating to the city attorney," same reference "relating to the street commissioner," same reference, "relating to the improvement of streets," referred to the committee on streets, "relating to the letting of street contracts" same reference "for the prevention and removal of obstructions from streets at their intersection with the Willamette river," referred to the committee on landings and wharves "providing for the collection of delinquent taxes," referred to the committee on ways and means.

Until the above ordinances pass their third reading the only ordinances in legal force are the following, which have been re-enacted; "Defining the duties of the city marshal" "concerning offenses," and "Regulating licenses," and that "For the prevention of railroad accidents," which passed its third reading at the last meeting

UMATILLA NOTES

UMATILLA, July 22.

The Kwong Hing Ditch Company are at present working thirty men, blasting at the head of the ditch. Owing to the porosity of the golden sands that roll down in this part of the country, a flume 60x20 inches will be laid the first two miles. The first shipment of 50,000 feet lumber is on the way from Hood river. They intend having water through by August 20.

Some tramps entered the room of one of the railroad boys at this place, a few days ago, and appropriated a silver watch and coin—$4 50. A party of the train boys collected, and corralled the suspected ones, and by standing them on their heads and tickling with a blacksnake, managed to shake out coin corresponding with that stolen. As the watch could not be found, and the coin could not be identified, they were turned loose to hunt a fresh victim.

Chinamen are working the Columbia bars for ten miles below Umatilla, and are doing well—that is, making considerable more than railroad pay—eighty cents per day. A party of Indians from Long Island crossed the river on Monday and raided a gang of the Celestials for plunder and pastime, for it is but amusement for a buck Siwash to enter a China house and clean out half a dozen. They succeeded in getting away with an ounce or so of dust, some flour and bacon, and a blanket or two

A reward of $100 is offered by the friends of William Edwards of Challis, Idaho, who has been missing since May 4, for the recovery of his body or of the valise in his possession at that time. On the evening of that day he purchased a ticket and left Pendleton on Conductor Roleson's train for Umatilla, since which time all trace of him is lost. He had about $400 in greenbacks on his person, and there is no doubt but he has been foully dealt with

THE STAGE.

NEW MARKET THEATER.—Denman Thompson must know that his pleasing and faithfully rendered comedy character of "Joshua Whitcomb" is appreciated in this city, after the audience that greeted him last evening. New Market was filled up stairs and down and the roars of laughter and rounds of applause made one almost fear for the stability of the walls. There is sure to be full houses the rest of the engagement, since it positively closes Saturday night. It was unfortunate that the delay of the steamer caused the troupe to lose one night, but their engagements elsewhere must be met.

B. CAMPBELL, General Agent.

A New Anecdote of General Grant.

From the New York World

When General Grant was president one of his nearest friends, who is now dead, went to ex-Congressman Paige to ask a loan of $5000. This friend said he had an affair in the war department that would net him $50,000, which would certainly go through if Grant would approve it. This gentleman counted upon Grant's approval as absolute. Paige told him "I will let you have the money, but you may be sure that he will not approve it unless it is right." Time passed on. The note given for the loan was promptly met. Paige, meeting the borrower upon the street soon after, said to him: "I see your war department matter got through all right, as the note was very promptly met." The debtor shook his head. "How did you pay, then?" was asked. "I will tell you in confidence," was the reply. "After I obtained the money from you I went directly to the president. I said to him 'You know I am poor. With a stroke of your pen you can make me rich. I am related to you by the closest ties of blood and association. You can not refuse me.' I then explained the matter. Grant said he could not do it. It would not be right. Seeing me very much cast down, he asked me if I was in debt. I explained that I was in debt $5000—your note—and could not meet it. He at once wrote me his check for the amount without a word. It was that check which took up your note." Mr Paige afterward investigated his story carefully, and having confidential relations with the cashier of the bank where the note was paid, was able to verify its truth

Planning to Kill the Civil Service Law

Washington Special to Indianapolis Journal

"Of course the president would veto a bill to repeal the civil service law," said a South Carolina congressman, "but there is a better way to kill the plagued thing"

"How is that?" I asked

"By refusing to appropriate money for the commission" he replied

"Will Congress do it?"

"Yes" was the answer. "I am almost positive that the house will steadily refuse, from this time on, to appropriate money to maintain the commission"

"What is the general objection that you hear to the law?"

"That it is simply an interference with men who want to reward their friends, that it gives places to those who least deserve them and who are least practically capable of filling them."

FALLS DOWN A SHAFT.

E D Reynolds, of Massachusetts, Meets his Death in the Alice Mine at Butte City—A Sheer Fall of 500 Feet.

Probably the saddest and most terrible accident that has yet occurred in the annals of mining mishaps at Butte City, Montana, transpired there on the 14th inst. in the Alice mine. The victim was Mr E. D. Reynolds of Massachusetts, a representative of mining machinery firms, an affable, pleasant gentleman and one thoroughly versed in his scientific avocation. Tuesday afternoon he determined to inspect some machinery in the Alice mine, made the tour of it successfully and came out again. Some fatality of forgetfulness in his first visit induced him to reenter the mine, only to meet his death

The Miner tells of the occurrence as follows "It appears that after coming up from looking at the pumping machinery at the Alice, Mr Reynolds went over to the Moulton and in a short time returned to the Alice, and without speaking to any person, lifted up the trap door and went down into the shaft. What really happened after this no one but God knows. It is presumed, however, that Reynolds wanted to take some measurements of the big bob of the pump, and for this purpose descended the shaft about eight feet, and seating himself on a center piece, took his rule from his pocket and placed it on the piece of timber that he sat upon. He was then in the act of placing his candle in such a position that would enable him to properly see, and while doing this the huge bob came up, and, catching him under the legs, threw him over into the shaft. The body fell through the east compartment of the shaft about 300 feet, and then shot over on the west side of the shaft, and so continued until it fell upon the bonnet of the cage at the 500-foot level. The shaft from the place where the two-foot rule was found, about eight feet below the surface, to the 500-foot level, was covered with blood, brains, bones and hair, and the miners who were put to work cleaning the shaft down last night declare that they never performed such a sickening job in all their lives."

Such is as much as is known and conjectured as to the manner in which the unfortunate man met his death. The accident only adds another horror to the numerous casualties that have from time to time astonished the world with the tale of danger and jeopardy in which the life of the miner is ever placed and which occasionally culminates by a fatal misstep or a false move in the hurling of the unlucky explorer into eternity.

Mr. Reynolds was a native of the Bay state, was about 35 years of age, and has made his headquarters in Butte since 1877. The numerous friends he has made in Montana will regret his loss and bewail his untimely end. He was a member and officer of the Silver Bow club in Butte and was a respected and honored resident of that community.

A Bourbon Row in Ohio

Cleveland Special, July 15th to Chicago Tribune

There is a first-class row being worked up in the democratic camp, and it will burst just when all should be peaceful. It will be between the friends of the administration and its enemies. The latter are sore because of the sparse and unexpected distribution of the offices, and are numerous enough to dictate the convention's work. This dictation will show itself in either a condemnatory plank or no notice of the administration. There will be no free choice of candidates in the convention. All that will be attended to by the ring in conference, and is nearly done. The latest coup d'etat of the coal-oil crowd is an effort to crowd John G. Warwick off the track for lieutenant governor and nominate George L. Converse of Columbus for second place. Should this succeed the ticket will be Hoadly and Converse, with the understanding that, if elected, Hoadly will resign to accept a seat on the United States Supreme bench, and Converse will grasp the gubernatorial lever. This ticket would be most admirably adapted to widening the gap between the kids and the mossbacks and losing the state to the democracy. Hoadly, though allowing his name to go before the national convention at the wink and nod of McLean, is distasteful enough to the Thurmanites and a bitter pill for them to swallow, but Converse, with the memory of his alleged treachery to the old Roman at Chicago still fresh, would drive the mossbacks to the alternative of either putting an opposition ticket in the field or voting for the republican nominees. The disposition among the anti-coaloil ers is to repeat the old ticket as far as possible if any portion of it is renominated, and under all circumstances to renominate Warwick if Hoadly is renominated

War History—The Battle of Bull Run

CHARLESTON, S C, July 13—The News and Courier publishes a long letter from General Wade Hampton, correcting errors in the recent articles of Johnson and Imboden, touching the first battle of Manassas or Bull Run. General Hampton shows that the Hampton legion, 600 strong, which he commanded, arrested the victorious columns of Sherman and Keyes, who were driving the confederate forces back, and the legion so delayed the federal advance as to enable the confederate reinforcements to be brought up. The News and Courier gives an elaborate review of the battle, the history of which, it claims, must now be rewritten. Its conclusion is that Hampton was to Jackson at Manassas, what Jackson was to the whole confederate left. Hampton saved Stonewall Jackson, as Jackson saved the army. It was the magnificent fighting of the legion under terrible odds that gave Jackson time to bring his troops into position. Had he not had the opportunity to form the Virginians, who afterwards stood "like a stone wall, the battle would have been irretrievably lost. The opportunity to form those Virginians was given to Jackson by Hampton and his men, and was given by them alone

The Aristocrats Rule England

Labouchere in London Truth

In these days of democracy we have a cabinet almost exclusively composed of peers and peers' sons, and this cabinet has been forced upon the nation, if we are to believe Lord Salisbury, by the active interference of the queen. By this we may judge what "Tory democracy" really means. It means that the aristocracy are our natural leaders, that they are to govern and that we are to be thankful to them if they condescend to govern us benevolently

Not Complimentary to His Political Creators.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat

The democrats who for the past four months have been honestly seeking office in the sweat of their jaws, will not be particularly complimented at being pronounced "political pests" by the president, but nevertheless that is the expression he is reported as having used in reference to them when speaking of his summer vacation

BOGUS MANUFACTURES.

A Denunciation of Adulterated Food and Counterfeit Wares, which will Apply also to Bogus Journalism.

Chicago Herald, July 15.

If all the notorious food adulterations carried on openly in this country are not significant of the downright rascality of a great part of the American people, then business morality amounts to nothing, and a swindler is as good as an honest man. A nation of thieves and watch stuffers could not if it tried practice on itself or its neighbors more glaring frauds than the American people perpetrate on one another.

There are butter factories in Chicago and all over the country calling themselves "dairies" which never handle a quart of milk and do not make a pound of butter, though their product is valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. There are coffee and spice manufacturers who pack thousands of pounds of their ground abominations who handle very little coffee and import no spices at all. There are ice cream manufacturers who never use milk, cream, eggs or sugar. There are apiarists who, though turning out honey by the ton, have no bees. There are candy manufacturers who buy little or no sugar. There are maple sugar dealers and jobbers who own no maple trees and have no use for any. There are refiners of lard who have no use for pork. There are manufacturers of fine fruit syrups who never buy any sugar, and who would not know what to do with fruit flavoring if they had it. There are manufacturers of genuine home-made jellies whose works go right on in winter as well as summer, and who do not trouble themselves to buy fruit even when it is so plenty and cheap that it is rotting. There are cheese makers who have no dairies and who never use milk, and there are a thousand other just such villains in almost every line of business that is in any way connected with the traffic in food

The dishonest manufacturer should be broken up in his business as remorselessly as the money counterfeiter is, and the man who sells his wares knowingly should be dealt with as severely as the one who essays to palm off the product of the counterfeiter's dies. There is no escape from these conclusions compatible with public health and commercial honesty. A nation of rascals cannot stand.

COMMERCIAL.

THURSDAY July [illegible].

Weather clear and warm

New York, Chicago and San Francisco exchanges closed to-day at 1 P. M.

Steamer State of California reached San Francisco at midnight and the Columbia sailed at 10:30 A. M.

Overland receipts include 50 cs coal oil 36 bbls linseed oil, 178 pkgs tobacco 20 kgs 2 bbls syrup 5 bxs smoked meat

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past 24 hours 174 ctls wheat 626 bbls flour 1417 ctls oats 680 ctls bran, 271 ctls millstuff 47 sks potatoes 35[illegible] lbs wool, 1223 lbs hides 97 cs eggs [illegible] bxs fruit 27 pkgs butter. Also 10,422 ctls wheat 440 ctls oats 13 436 lbs wool 2835 lbs hides 6 bxs fruit from the eastern section

FREIGHTS—No arrivals or departures in the week. The Elma sails within this calendar week. The Haidee and Carnarvon Castle are still on salmon berth at Astoria with the Besse loading for New York. The Kitty has some wheat in here and will soon get away. To arrive—The Beemah is the nearest vessel and she takes salmon berth. Transactions in futures for the week were few. The inquiry fell off and with rather higher rates asked by owners but two or three have been closed. Offerings of tonnage for late loading continue fair. Rates show no change although owners are not willing to duplicate business reported last week.

REGISTERED TONNAGE STATEMENT

In port—Finished with wheat
To load wheat 803
Loading salmon 1 487
In New York berth 1 0[illegible]
In China trade 85[illegible]—4 942
On way—Due July August 3 310
Due Aug. Sept 1 507
Due Sept. Oct 7 528
Due Oct. Nov 3,885
Due Nov. Dec 8 628
Due later on 1 40—32 108

WHEAT—Partly because of war talk and partly through poor crop reports the cargoes market improved early in the week and the number of cargoes on sale off coast was soon reduced. Later on a calmer political feeling brought about depression and the market closed weak. Of course the American markets went up with a bound keeping somewhat in advance of English advices. For the past three days Chicago and New York have backed down closing all of 2c below highest prices in the week. San Francisco futures ruled excited and spot holders demanded more money for wheat. To-day all markets are unsettled manifesting weakness and further declines are improbable. Our own market has found no business of importance. The receipt of new Walla Walla is frequent with less coming from Snake river. That arriving is stored here. Shipments outward so far, being old crop. No doubt there has been some trading in the interior but particulars are not furnished and $1 20 would be the extreme to quote. Valley holders entertain high ideas. As a bid for shipping $1 25 is the best while millers would go $1 27½. The crop is being harvested in good shape with fine weather. Soon the movement will set in and as there is no considerable amount of tonnage in sight for early loading city warehouses will be crowded.

FLOUR—Steady local trade doing at unchanged values. The mills have not increased stocks of late many of them being in the hands of renovators or having new machinery added. Values are expected to show no change before new wheat is used. Quote standards $4 50 others $3 50@3 [illegible]

MILLSTUFF—Movement large for the week and mostly for shipping account. The local trade takes sparingly. Values show no change. Quote jobbing prices Bran, $12@13 chop $16 50@18 shorts $14@1[illegible] middlings, $18@20

BARLEY—Light movement and the local trade has taken none. Nominal quotations are $16@18 for feed and $20 for brewing

OATS—Shipments by last steamer were 3800 ctls, a falling off of one-half from those by previous steamers. Receipts here show the same lessening. As a consequence the market is less crowded and holders are asking up for choice lots. Any improvement in prices would doubtless result in larger offerings which in turn would weaken the market. The position is therefore one of weakness and to realize any better prices supplies must be kept down. Some time will be required to bring about any improvement in San Francisco that market being heavily stocked. We quote fair to choice feed [illegible]@35c poor grades 2[illegible]@28c some holders asking up to 35c for best

POTATOES—Supplies continue ample and are furnished mostly from wagons at 50c per bushel. Sweet sell at 4c

ONIONS—Weak at [illegible]c under low first cost, Trade only local

TROPICAL FRUITS—Few oranges in and these of indifferent quality. Dealers have ceased importing and await new crop arrivals. Lemons steady at $[illegible] limes $1 [illegible] bananas $[illegible] cocoanuts [illegible]c

FRUITS, ETC—Oregon best apples bringing 50 @60c. No California received. Plums in small request at 1@1 [illegible]c. Melons arrived from The Dalles this morning. Peaches of fine quality are in the market from the south selling at 90c@$1 25. California in portions per last steamer sold at tomatoes $1@1 [illegible] for small and large boxes pears $1, grapes $1 00@1 50 melons $[illegible] per dozen cantaloupes $4 50 per crate

BUTTER—Offerings reduced yet still ample. Stocks of common are not greatly reduced. Quote dairy [illegible]@25c common 8@18c

POULTRY—Few old chickens coming in and prices are firmer at $3 50@4 50. Young sell at $2 @3, with an occasional advance for large choice. Ducks and geese not inquired for and nominally quoted $5 and $7@8

EGGS—The market has ruled weak under free arrivals a good portion of which were not fit to handle. Stocks show some increase in past two days. Quote 17c

MRS. SURRATT'S BOARDER

Washington Special, July 1

Louis J Weichmann has been appointed to the revenue service board in Philadelphia. The appointment took place in the same week with the anniversary of the hanging twenty years ago Tuesday, the 7th inst. of Mrs Surratt and the other conspirators in the assassination of President Lincoln. Weichmann was the witness upon whose testimony Mrs. Surratt was convicted. He had been a theological student with John Surratt in 1859 boarded with the Surratts while a clerk in the war department, and was treated like a brother and son. He met Booth the same day that John Surratt did, being introduced by Dr Mudd. With Surratt and Atzerodt he went to Ford's theater to hear Booth as Pescara, in the "Apostate." Payne, the fellow who stabbed Secretary Seward, was a guest of Weichmann's at the Surratt house, and it was at his request that Payne was harbored in the house. The two occupied the same room and slept in the same bed. The first night Payne was there Weichmann went down to the kitchen got supper for him and took it up to his bedroom. Weichmann used to go to church regularly with Mrs. Surratt, being as she was, a devout Catholic. It was Weichmann who drove Mrs. Surratt to Surrattsville the day of the assassination, when the carbines were taken there for Booth and Harold. The lawyers and the public generally were a good deal puzzled by Weichmann's testimony, whether he was a detective watching the Surratts or a badly frightened coward and conspirator. Weichmann has never said anything additional about the conspiracy, although he had the opportunity a few years ago when Mr. Campbell, one of the attorneys for Mrs. Surratt, accused him in the pages of the North American Review, of deliberately swearing away the woman's life

The Northern Pacific's Scheme to Ship Tea from Tacoma.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC'S REPORT

A Reassuring Dispatch from General Sheridan—A Big Cannon Cast for an Experiment—New Items from Washington, Etc.

SAN FRANCISCO, July [illegible]. The report that the Northern Pacific railroad had completed arrangements at Washington for shipping tea from China and Japan to the east over its route in bond from Tacoma, has been the subject of much comment among tea importers and railroad men here. One of the leading tea merchants referring to the project said: "It may in a certain sense be looked upon as an experiment but not as a hazardous one. Both the Northern Pacific and the Canadian Pacific have had the establishment of such a route under consideration for years, and both so far as is generally known would have advantage over the Union Pacific. Earnings from this traffic by the Pacific Mail and the Occidental and Oriental steamship lines which, with the Central and Union Pacific form the old China tea route are over $1 000 000 annually. They bring us about 70 000 000 pounds of tea every year, a comparatively small proportion of which remains on this coast any longer than is required for the purpose of transhipment.

A reduction of rates on large shipments has already been announced by the Pacific Mail and Occidental and Oriental steamship companies which is said to be for the purpose of excluding the Northern Pacific from this business. It is believed however that the new line will hold its own as it will receive strong support from eastern and English importers.

Inquiries made among local railroad officials resulted in further confirmation of the truth of the report that the Northern Pacific tea line is not merely an experimental organization. One gentleman said he had learned that with the exception of the Isabel the line was to be composed of clipper ships. A number of these vessels have already been chartered by the company. The same informant said there was every indication of the opening of another line by the Canadian Pacific on its completion to Port Moody in 1886.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC'S REPORT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23. The annual report of the Central Pacific Railroad Company for 1884 has been issued. The total capital stock of the company has been put at $[illegible], total assets $[illegible]. Gross earnings for last year are $[illegible] being nearly $[illegible] 000 less than for the year previous. Expenditures on the other hand are over $1 000,000 greater. The decrease in earnings is explained by the heavy storms during the first half of the year. The balance sheet shows a deficit of $114,280 which added to $1[illegible] of unearned dividends paid makes a total deficit of $1 [illegible]. The directors claim there is due the company from the government $[illegible] which is held without sanction of law by the United States treasury department. The directors remark: This treatment by the government is in striking contrast to our unflinching efforts to perform fully every duty to the United States.

THE VISIT OF COLONEL CLOWRY

He is accompanied by M. C. Bristol superintendent of construction, C H Summers electrician and B F Roberts stenographer. Colonel Clowry is on a tour of general inspection and to see what improvement can be made in facilities for better service from the east to this coast. He expects to remain here one week returning east by the Southern Pacific.

A REASSURING DISPATCH FROM SHERIDAN

TOPEKA Kan July 23—Governor Martin has received the following telegram from General Sheridan, dated Fort Reno to-day:

I have your letters of July 11th and 20th. They have been referred to General Miles, who starts for Fort Supply to-morrow and will make an examination of the country and points you mention as military stations. There need be no fear on the part of settlers from southwestern Kansas from hostilities by Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians. I have gone down to the bottom of affairs here and I know that the irritation was the result of bad control and oppressive measures. I hope for correction of the evils and am confident that when I leave here the people in Kansas may gather their crops and sleep peacefully at night. General Miles is an officer of good judgment who will do all that is necessary to restore confidence from the panic so paralyzing in its effects as this one has been to the industries of your state.

P. H. SHERIDAN, General.

A BIG CANNON CAST

NEW YORK, July 23. An immense cannon was cast at the Jersey City foundry yesterday for the New York Pneumatic Dynamite Gun Company. If the expectations are realized nothing afloat can withstand one of its terrible discharges. The barrel is sixty feet long. It is breech loading, and weighs forty six tons. It is made of heavy wrought iron lined throughout with a full bore of eight inches. It was cast in four sections each fifteen feet long, with iron collars welded together with stout steel bolts. The barrel is bolted to eight reservoirs. The compressed air necessary to fire it is stored. Its projectile is equally formidable carrying a charge of 180 pounds of dynamite. When completed the gun will be tested at Fort Lafayette by the government board. The company expect to sell it to the navy department.

Want to Compare London with Chicago

Chicago Herald

At a South Side book store yesterday a gentleman asked for the last issue of the Pall Mall Gazette—the number that has just created so much talk. He was informed that it could not possibly be here for some days. He left his name for three copies. A well dressed lady came in, looked over the pile of foreign publications selected one—I am forced to say it was the Pall Mall—looked it over very minutely, put it back and then ventured: "When will the next number be in?" The clerk said to me "I could have sold a thousand of those papers to-day if I had had them. It's funny, too, for, to my certain knowledge, two-thirds of those people who are so anxious to see that paper know no more about the people who have been written up in it than they do of the bottom of the sea, and not so much." I walked away with a regretful thought. The inclination to hover around the social ruin seems to be a trait which a majority cannot blot out.
